My dear Lillie:

I know you will be shocked to have a letter from me, or one from Orange, as we are all the poorest letter writers in the world.

Lutcher wanted me to write to you to ask you if, at any time, his mother had given you girls a small diamond ring. It had been her intention to do so some years ago, and he did not know if she had ever done so.

Mrs. Stark has not been very well since dad's death, as you well know the shock was so great to her. Some day Lutcher and I are going to get up there to see you all, but I have been in such miserable health for so many years that I could not make the trip, and Mrs. Stark would not leave dad on account of his blindness.

Please give my love to all the folks up there, and tell them I think of them often.

Devotedly,

Nita.
